

The Art Institute of Tampa™

A Branch of Miami International University of Art & Design

August, 2010

To Whom It May Concern:

It is a distinct pleasure to recommend to you a former student at the Art Institute of Tampa, Lisa Cox. In my capacity as faculty member, Graphic Design Department, I had the opportunity to instruct Lisa in several classes within our program of study.

Lisa's enthusiasm to learn is only one of the outstanding characteristics that endeared her to the faculty and staff at the school. She never approached classroom projects as a chore, but rather as an opportunity to investigate, develop, produce, and grow.

She provided outstanding help for the faculty and fellow students as a worker at the Service Bureau, assisting all in formatting files for execution as well as many other classroom activities. She stood out to me as a "technology problem-solver," never saying I can't, but rather finding ways of solving problems—a characteristic not evident in all of our graduates. I cannot speak to her time as a student worker as the graphic designer for the Public Relations Director, but she left her mark on the pieces she designed and produced, and gave a professional appearance to the graphic elements around the school.

If your organization is looking to employ a recent graduate of a Graphic Design program that will be a hard worker with strong design sense, then Lisa is the candidate for you. She will perform within your organization as a great "team player" who will find ways to make those around her better contributors to the production of your company.

If there is anything further about Lisa's pending employment that I can clarify for you, please do not hesitate to contact me.

Sincerely,

Peter W. Miller, pmiller@aii.edu
